

Specsavers solves the problem

Research from Specsavers Corporate Eyecare has revealed that the majority of staff who wear prescription glasses are still being provided with safety over-goggles.

Just under half of respondents said they have staff who need safety eyewear as part of their working role, yet 55% are provided with safety over-goggles; 28% are provided with prescription safety eyewear sourced by the company; and 18% let their staff source their own prescription safety eyewear.

Prescription safety glasses are a more suitable solution for anyone requiring safety eyewear on a regular basis.

New report from IAM RoadSmart

Distracted drivers cause death – and businesses need a safety overhaul to stop it, IAM RoadSmart has said in a new report.

The UK's biggest independent road safety charity has just published a whitepaper called Driving While Distracted: Challenges and Solutions, which examines the reasons why so many motorists' minds wander whilst driving, and what can be done to reverse the trend. The whitepaper states that fleets are facing higher costs for fines, damages and charges; while at the same time manufacturers are intent on fitting vehicles with more distracting technology seemingly by the day.

New courses for 2019 from RRC

For 2019 RRC is introducing two new NEBOSH courses to its Dubai classroom schedule, along with expanding the courses offered in its UK centres.

Launched in London in mid 2018, RRC's NEBOSH HSE Certificate in H&S Leadership Excellence course has proven exceptionally popular and for 2019 we have scheduled further courses in Birmingham, Glasgow, Manchester and Newcastle.

We are also introducing the course to our Dubai centre with the first course in February, and a further four dates scheduled throughout the year.

RRC's new and improved courses

RRC's tutors and course development team have been working hard throughout 2018 on a major upgrade of its online courses. These new courses significantly improve the learning experience; and initial analysis suggests they provide better completion and success rates.

The courses comprise a series of video lessons, delivered by RRC's tutor team with further reading provided in e-book format, along with a full PDF copy of the course study texts which can be downloaded to multiple devices for offline study. Further resources include law guides, and a comprehensive glossary of health, safety and environmental management terminology. Most importantly, there is unlimited tutor support from RRC's expert team of tutors through e-mail and course forums.

Cority ranked top 5 worldwide

Software provider Cority has been placed in the top five EHS software brands by research firm Verdantix.

The 2018 Global EHS Leaders Survey: EHS Software Brands, looked at the responses of 411 senior EHS decision-makers across 35 countries and 25 industries to understand software brand preference and awareness in firms with high to very high EHS risk profiles.

Brand preference is defined as respondents perceiving an EHS software vendor as having market-leading or strong capabilities. The report noted: "These results demonstrate that Cority's recent rebrand from Medgate in June 2017 – a move driven by its acquisition of regAction and IQS – has been very successful."
